Abstract of the Disclosure

In an information processing unit with key controlled protection, since it takes a long time to fetch a storage key from key storage, an instruction and computation unit of a CPU receives data from a memory control unit of the CPU before a key is received, and then the transferred storage key is checked.